Foolish Saving

A penny saved is not always a penny earned. Sometimes it is two pennies lost. The merchant who spends nothing on advertising loses much more than he saves.

The money spent for plate glass windows is not looked on as lost; nor is the money spent on better interior lighting.

Anything that increases the flavor, that adds sales, that multiplies customers is very properly regarded as a good investment.

Advertising is a good investment — just as plate glass windows are. Advertising sells more goods to more persons than shop windows do.

A WORD TO THE PUBLIC

Do you resent having a merchant address his message to you in the form of an advertisement in our columns? On the contrary, is not your impulse to respond to his friendly overtures?

Skating and Curling Rink for Claresholm

There was a good attendance at the meeting held on Tuesday evening in the Odd Fellows' Hall, to consider building a skating and curling rink in Claresholm. It was evident that all present look upon the proposal favorably.

Mr. George Guy, the chosen chairman, was in attendance, and A. Fairhurst, secretary. Prominent citizens expressed their views on the desirability of building such a rink, and suggested ways and means of financing the same. Detailed information was given regarding rinks recently built in other Alberta towns, and the methods used in financing their construction.

The meeting went on as unanimously in favor of building a rink here, and also that it should be a municipal enterprise.

It is estimated that a fine rink can be built for about $10,000.00 to accommodate both skating and curling. It is believed that it can be financed here as it has in other towns, by raising as much as possible from the population, and the amount raised in this way to warrant going ahead, if might be possible for the town to issue a small debenture for the balance. It was decided to try this plan.

A finance committee was appointed consisting of Messrs. E. H. Mack (chairman), Geo. Maxwell, Stanley Wyatt and H. A. Fairhurst. This committee immediately went into action and secured pledges amounting to $1485.00 in a few minutes.

If the rest of the people will get behind the scheme as well as those who were at the meeting the rink is practically assured.

A building committee was appointed consisting of J. F. Reynolds (chairman), W. Knight, W. McLean and S. M. Ferguson.

The committee will look up suitable land and secure plans and estimates.

Another meeting will be held at an early date to receive reports from these committees.

Co-Operative Marketing

President Condie Says It Is Not a Panacea For All Its

Co-operative marketing can, and should, be made a success in the United States because it provides the best means of stabilizing the farmer's agriculture marketing organization. President Condie declared to the annual convention of the National Council of Farmers' Co-operative Assn.

Addressing the delegates to the convention at the White House, the President warned that co-operative marketing possesses no magical properties, and asserted that it must start from the soil and the people.

"There is a school of cooperators who seem to believe that the programme can be started at the top and go downwards," he added.

"The way to the government or the bank or the producer is not to provide to every country; set us merely for money, guarantee it all needed capital and then invite us to come to the door and request for them to proceed to earn their profits. Let me say that I offer no such Aladdin-like project. I want society as a whole to help, but I want the farmers to do it themselves, a task which they will be the best suited."

Co-operative marketing, the President continued, must have its beginnings in small and modest units and not in large people units. He also said he thinks co-operatives should be treated as a principle, not as a panacea.

Doing Good Work

Being Careful and Consistent Adds To Personal Worth

Charles R. Brown expresses an inspiring talk to his congregation that the highest reward in life is giving well in the power to do it still better." No one will underestimate the fact that good work commands a better financial reward than poor work, and the reward which conscientious finished work itself commands upon the worker. It adds something to his personal worth. It makes him more valuable to his employer, it secures him a fitter instrument for the doing of the world's needed work. No one can afford to work in a careerless, aimless life. No matter how poor the wage one gets, it is himself to whom the wage belongs. To do one's best is to force some of the higher values of life. It means shrinking instead of growth.

Sensible Public Buildings

Mosaic Walls and Gothic Decorations Are Not Ornamentals

Domestic architects will have to revise their idea of public buildings. They are requiring public buildings today in more spaces, to accommodate walls and Gothic decorative necessities. All over America today, they are erecting fine public buildings of plain concrete, with plenty of space and light. They are built at the heart of the taxpayer with pride, but not secured at the expense of efficiency. These buildings, beautifully simple, and even more beautifully simple, cost one-quarter the amount of the ornate classical ones we see in Canada.—Vancouver Sun.

Recently the lamp was gone and Mrs. Carter was weeping tears of joy over a telegram saying her son had at last arrived in New York on a ship "Asia" and would be home with a few days.

Boy Guidance: A New Profession

By Marjorie Bradford, Social Service Council of Canada

"One boy in every fourteen is lost into court for delinquency. Delinquency is largely manufactured energy. After leaving a boy's natural and positive energies, we arrive at a point where unguided, we arrive at God-given energy!" So spoke Brother Barnabas, executive secretary of the Boy Life Bureau, Knights of Columbus in Canada, in an address before the National Boy Scout Association meeting in Toronto last June.

Addressing the delegates to the convention at the White House, the President warned that co-operative marketing possesses no magical properties, and asserted that it must start from the soil and the people.

"There is a school of cooperators who seem to believe that the programme can be started at the top and go downwards," he added.

"The boy is the soul of the human family," he said, "and has changed in the past two generations. Time was when the members of a family spent practically their lives together while the children were growing up. Father and boys were together in the field, the men developing the land. The church and the home were vital factors in the boy's developing life. But as rural development has given way to big industrial centers and cities, and individual chances have appeared, and in many cases the mothers, have become separated from their children during most of their waking hours. This is a situation that a teacher in the education field has developed—the school, and it has to some extent filled the need which arose with the changing occupations of the people."

The physical business of living to day is easier than it has ever been. A great deal of leisure time is now available where once the working hours were fully occupied. "It is this leisure time," says Brother Barnabas, "that while it enriches the boy, it makes them more complex. Our recreations include ten activities where our grandparents knew one. Necessary, that is, in maintaining the health of the nation. We have a greater desire than ever that the men of that great nation may remain ever Samoa as long as the sun shines on the earth."

This is the message sent in the telegram to the Rev. J. S. French, Bell, leader of the council of New Zealand, by a delegation from Samoa, native parliament which has been visiting New Zealand.

Samoa Islands (formerly) belonged to German Western Samoa, consisting of eight Islands, is now under the mandatory control of New Zealand, the remaining islands being under Japanese control. Dr. R. L. Stevenson, the famous writer, lived in Samoa for a number of years, and his grave is near Apia, Samoa.

Using Sun At Night

Energy Captured to Run Illuminating System at Cairo

There is an old joke about a simple fellow who remarked that it was a great pity the sun didn't shine at night, when it was really needed. Rightly, he was told, "That's exactly what the people of Cairo have succeeded in making it do," writes M. Tevis in the October St. Nicholas. The city is actually lighted at night by bottled sunlight, so to speak.

The sun's energy, in the form of heat—is captured by means of huge reflectors. These are made of copper and tin, and form a mirror which has the power, just as a burning glass has, of bringing the sun's rays to a focus and therefore greatly intensifying the heat.

It is noted that Cairo is the only city in the world which derives the power required to run its illuminating system this manner. But then there are very few cities, of course, so favorably situated with regard both to the number of sunshine hours and the intensity of the sunlight.

Native of Samoa Like British Rule

King Union Jack May Continue To Fly Over Islands

"Our true desire is that the British flag may continue to fly over as in the past. Our Queen is the Queen of England, and now that we are on the threshold of our independence, we hope that the Queen of New Zealand will be a greater despot than ever that the Queen of that great nation may remain over Samoa as long as the sun shines on the earth."

Deer Protected From Hunters

Great Herd in Utah Forest Now Numbers 25,000

In the Kabab National Forest in Utah is a herd of 25,000 deer that is increasing rapidly. In 1930, the state Department of Agriculture found forest starvation or an epidemic from overcrowding. The deer are of the varietal called "mule," and are so tame that mountain dwelling trappers have a hide of hundreds of them grazing. No hunting has ever been allowed here, and the stockmen have hired traps to kill all predatory animals. Thus protected, the deer have increased at a great rate. The Government is now taking steps to have them shipped to other states.

Freedom For Italy

Lloyd George Says Liberalism Is the Sole Hope for That Country

David Lloyd George told an audience in London, that Liberalism was the sole hope of Italian democracy. Freedom, that country, he said, has been corrupted by fascism.

Repression, arson, confiscation and murder, he continued, have become the instruments of Government, and "there has been nothing like it in Italy since the arraigned rule of King Umberto."

"If the struggle against this totalitarian despotism were left to the Socialists alone," said Mr. Lloyd George, "they would be beaten. The Socialists are too apt to equate violence with the virtue of sacrifice, of Fascism, on one hand, and the class and race struggle for socialism for the other. But the Liberal party is the only party in Italy that has the will and the wisdom of the war, is now recovering its strength, and is giving a hopeful lead to those desiring to see the Italian nation once more a free people."

The most liberal leaders, Gioflitti, Orlando, Salandra and Nitti, are moving toward a new struggle for Italian freedom.

Farming For Furs

Industry Has a Very Promising Future

In Canada

The raising of mink is becoming unusual in Scotland. At Falkirk, near Edinburgh, experiments have been conducted with a view to developing a mink industry, the skins of the skins to be used for hats and coats.

A tomahawk, somewhat debilitated, was grafted on a strong potato plant and it produced a fair crop of tomatoes. The plants were dug up, it was found to have also grown the usual assortment of potatoes.

Now, if anyone will cross the sugar beet with a canary-pea, perhaps both species will produce an adequate crop of both with more sweetness in the melon and a dauber flavor in the beet. And then, no doubt, science will produce a canary tree which grows its own presents.—British News.

More Handsome Men

Men's Faces Are Changing Owing to Conditions of Modern Civilization

The conditions of modern civilization are changing men's faces and making them generally more handsome, according to Dr. Arthur Jeffery, conservator of the Museum of the Royal College of Surgeons. He says a diminished use of the jaws is causing changes in the bony framework of the face.

Water Stenman, who compiles the photographic record of the nation's most famous men for the National Geographic Society, declares that, in general, men's faces are becoming narrower and more refined.

Men take less care in cleaning their faces than women, he says.

"CAPTAIN BLOOD," A Vitagraph picture with J. Warren Kerrigan in the title role, is an adaptation of this thrilling novel.

SYNOPSIS

Peter Blood, a young Irish physician, is taken prisoner, charged with treason while treating the wounded after the battle of Edgehill. Part of the Monmouth rebels and the soldiers of King James. With Jeremy Pitt and others he is condemned to death before the bloody Lord Jeffreys. They are sentenced to death, but King James, who has been captured and sent to the colonies, there to be sold as slaves, Blood, Pitt and about fifty others are spared. They are sent to Bridgewater, Barbadoes. There Governor Sted, Colonel Bishop and others are plotting to kidnap and buy them. Arabella Bishop, niece of the Colonel, calls his attention to the Colonels' plan, and he says that the Colonels' plan is to make a profit of selling the slaves at half the price of those given to the physician for the physician.

There came a chuckle from Governor Sted. "You hear, Colonel Pitt? She's a sex! Her sex knows a man when it sees one. And he laughed. But he laughed alone, for a sense of annoyance swept across the face of the Colonels' niece. Jeremy Pitt had almost ceased to breathe.

"I give you ten pounds for him," said the Colonel, "and I'll have him."

Peter Blood protest that the offer might be rejected. For no reason that he could have given you, he was taken with repugnance at the thought of becoming the property of this gross animal, and in some sort the property

"I think I know you, sir," she said of that has been so long ago. But it would need more than repugnance to save him from his destiny. A slave is a slave, and has no power to shape his fate. Peter Blood was sold to Colonel Bishop—a diabolical buyer—for the enormous sum of ten pounds.

CHAPTER V.
Arabella Bishop

One sunny morning in January, about a month after the arrival of the Jamaica Merchant at Bridgewater, Miss Arabella Bishop, who had come to the northward of her Uncle, was attended by two negroes who trusted after her at a respectful distance. Reaching the summit of a gentle, grassy slope, she met a tall, lean man,

ABLE TO DO
HOUSEWORK NOW

Sick a Year. Got Great Benefit from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Bloomington, N. Y.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for pains and backache, also for nervousness, sick headaches and sleeplessness, year, and a friend told me about the Vegetable Compound and induced me to great benefit from it and am able to do my housework now. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to all and am willing for you to use this letter as a testimonial. Anna Maria County, N. S.

Do you know that in a recent canvass some 10,000 letters were sent to the Vegetable Compound over 220,000 replies were received. To the question, "Have you ever used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?" 98 per cent replied "Yes."

This means that 98 out of every 100 women who have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound are satisfied with the results they have given this medicine a fair trial.

Mrs. Morse is simply another case of a woman receiving great benefit. "When suffering from the troubles so common to the sex, I used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve. Give this dependable medicine a chance—and at once. It is sold at all drug stores."

dressed in a sober, gentlemanly fashion, who was walking in the opposite direction. Miss Arabella drew rein. "I think I know you, sir," said he. "You're one of Pitt's men."

He arose perhaps from an easer, a director, which dissolved the artifices of her sex, and set her on good terms with all the world. "To this it must be that this Pitt has really raised the age of men and women and made unmarred but unwooded. She used with all men a sisterly frankness.

The stranger came to a standstill upon being addressed.

"I only know her own property," said he.

"My property?" "Your uncle's. Your uncle's beauties. I am called Peter Blood."

She had known that this rabid couple had been discovered to be a physician. Governor Sted, who suffered dreadfully from the gout, had borrowed the fellow from his purchaser. Peter Blood had at first been a physician, and, as Governor Sted's hat had descended to attend her for the negroins. Mr. Blood prescribed for her and she had contracted her heart for her better protection. And this was the result. She had found there was more profit to be made out of this new slave by leaving him to pursue his profession than by setting him to work on the plantation.

"In some other planter had bought Mr. Blood, explained, as he thanked her. "It is odd that the fruits of my shilling abilities might never have been brought to light."

He received her interview when you uncle knighted me. At the time I received it."

"You wanted it?" There was a challenge in her boyish voice.

"I have had no lack of experience of the most varied scenes of life and sold was a new one, and I was hardly in the mood to buy my purchaser."

"I urged you upon my master, sir, it was I who I commanded you."

She hesitated to explain herself. "My uncle may appear to you a harsh man. They are all hard men, these planters. It is the life I suppose. But there are others who are not so bad."

"In the contrary. The others are all worthy rebels. I am not."

"If you are not a rebel, how come you here?"

"Pah, now, it's a long story," said he.

"And one perhaps that you would prefer not to tell?" Briefly on that did he nod.

"'I am God. What an Infuso!'" reflected upon what he had done.

"Oh, it is a sweet country England under King James! There's no need to communicate me further. All thangs I considered I prefer Barbadoes, the old home of my forefathers."

"That is one difference between us," she asked him, and she was very grave.

"Men make it so."

She sat silent on. Her negro sponge was wet, soaking after a bath. The remains of her meal lay beside her. He reflected, but it was a pale, and, in an mounting that he preferred it to the old man and indicated that almost every man in the room was in better health than himself, while his health was not.

A coat of tan is a trade mark, and not every man trade mark must be white, in every respect, while the product it stamp.

were not natural to that blood; they were, in his case, acquired. Her father, Tom Bishop (that same Colonel Bishop's brother), had been a kindly, chivalrous gentle man, who, broken hearted by early death, his wife, had abandoned the Old World and sought an angeline for his grief in the new. He had come out to the Americas, bringing with him his little daughter, his wife, and a year old son, and had given himself up to the life of a planter. He had prospered from the first, as most sometimes will who care nothing for prosperity. Prospering, he had brought his wife and son to him, and something wild. He had advised him to come out to Barbadoes; and the advice, which at another season Will Bishop might have scorned, had now become a golden talisman. His widow was beginning to bear with that a change of climate was desirable. William came, and was admitted by his generous brother to a partnership in the prosperous planter's business. The old man, however, was still a bachelor, and, as Arabella was fifteen, her father dead, leaving her in her uncle's guardianship. As things were, there was little love between uncle and niece. But she was dutiful to him, and he was delighted in his behavior before her. (To be continued)

of Gravity Said to Be Greatest Hazard

The frequent assertion that the hazard in commercial flying is almost negligible is tragically contradicted by the disaster at the Croydon airfield in England, where a nose dive and a tailspin caused the crash of the DH-52 mailplane last Friday evening, killing seven passengers and the pilot. In spite of reassuring statistics, it is likely that the flight of such an accident to minimize the danger that will attract many more.

The safest route of the British planes, however, as well as of the continental lines, has been excellent.

On April 19, 1919, in March 1923, the British commercial aviators new establishment routes more than 1,700 miles in all directions, but the losses must move away, for a while and things will seem strange indeed in the heart of London's financial district, the Bank of England doing business in the same building as the Royal Exchange.

As soon as the royal family housed elsewhere than Buckingham Palace.

The needs of modern business, however, must be met, and upon the new routes to the Bank of England's lone-story treasury building, a latter, up-to-date structure is to be erected.

While this modernizing process is going on in the "Old Lady of Threadneedle Street," we have been old fashioned in Flushing Circus, "Old Lady" has been sold to a white and black market.

Scott Monument Unsafe

Memorial in Edinburgh Has Been Closed to Public

The monument to Sir Walter Scott, in Princes Street, Edinburgh, described as the individual memorial to an individual man, is unsafe in its highest parts.

Edinburgh Town Council have permanently closed the upper portion to the public.

It would cost thousands for scaffolding alone to effect repairs. Some of the higher stones weigh a ton.

The monument, a Gothic structure 200 feet high, is adorned with 32 statues, including a statue of Sir Walter's character. Under the canopy is a statue of Scott with his favorite dog Maida. It was completed at a cost of £12,000.

The stone, a working mason named Kemp, was accidentally drowned in the Union Canal while his masterpiece was in course of construction.

In July of last year an ex-soldier was killed by a fall from the monument, the first accident of the kind since the monument was built 30 years ago.

The Most Useful Letter

Only Directly Manufactured English Script Could Omit "E"

Any printer would tell you that the most useful letter in the English language is the letter "E." It is the most frequently used letter in all English words, twice as often as any other single letter, though n and o are nearer to it than that. It occurs ten or twenty times to once for such letters as a, h, i, l, m, n, r, s, t, u, v, w, x, y, z.

Sun Spots and Static

Closely Related Says Dr. Bauer of Carnegie Institute

Static, bigbear of radio fans, is a close relation of sunspots, according to researches of Dr. Louis A. Bauer, director of the Department of Terrestrial Magnetism of Carnegie Institution, reported to the American Physical Society.

The relation between atmospheric electricity and sunspots has been ascertained to wear evening dress.

There must be a lot of people who would rather have a sunspot than a sunbeam.

Nevertheless, the learned professor does not explain how it is possible for a man who wants to appear fashionable in evening dress to wear a sunspot.

He is a good body-builder—he likes to exercise, and it is necessary to wear the way for him. And it seems a lot to ask that a man make himself ill at ease by wearing evening dress merely because his descendants 200 years hence may appear countable.—Stratford Beacon Herald.

Nothing To It When the Matter Was Explained

During the past 18 months, bankers have been taught to give their patrons the courtesy of a telephone call to advise them of their business.

Now, however, the practice is to leave a message, and the banker is to return to the office when the telephone call is made.

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

New York is the first city in which it has been found necessary to divide the telephone system into two time zones because of its growing business.

A notable feature of the past few weeks has been the arrival in England of large shipments of Canadian potatos. These have been consigned to several markets in the United States.

The air liner, Leander, is scheduled to make flights to Honolulu, San Juan, Porto Rico, the Canal Zone and other Honouliki or Europe by the spring.

What is said to be the first large shipment of Canadian oranges has recently arrived at Sheeps' X-Ray. They arrived in excellent order, and a favorable report.

George Fraser, 58, long active in theatrical circles in Montreal, died Jan. 23. Mr. Fraser was with the Montréal Opera Company in the Northwest Rebellion of 1885.

Poiani is experiencing the warmest winter recorded in a century. The thermometer at the Cooroo observatory, Jan. 5, registered 60 degrees Fahrenheit.

Lord Duncavelle, noted paper manufacturer, died Jan. 6, aged 88 years. He was at the head of a group of wood pulp industries in Canada bearing the family name Partington.

Revenue from coal on Canadian railroads in the west ended December 27, 1924, decreased by 10,583 carloads from the loadings of the previous week and by 5,521 carloads from those of the previous month.

In order to keep out the influx of impudent immigrants next year, the Australian Government has issued a regulation which states that no person shall be allowed to land in the Commonwealth unless he has a sum in possession of at least forty pounds.

A special meeting of the Mining Bureau will be held at Vancouver to consider the advisability of suggesting to the Federal Government that ownership of British Columbia minerals in situ be restricted to British citizens.

Increase in Livestock

Figures Show That Mixed Farming Is Gaining in Manitoba

An increase in every kind of farm livestock is revealed in the report for 1923 of the Manitoba Department of Agriculture. Pigs lead the increase with 66,400, as against 291,512 last year. Sheep numbers increased in about the same ratio, the former from 692,202 to 710,949, the latter from 244,411 to 371,587. Sheep have added some 1,700 to their previous population total of 59,162.

SPARKLING EYES FOLLOW GOOD HEALTH

Toronto, Ont.—From the time of my earliest girlhood I had always heard my mother say that Dr. De Clerc's Favourite Prescription for women was the best. She'd say it was strange that after all the years of backaches, nervousness and other distresses, she had never had a bad cold. My mother had always said of this Prescription that it was the best of all my mother's remedies and that it relieved me of my aching pains and nervousness. It was also good for my strength and so greatly benefited me that I used to say to my doctor, “Doctor, Please! Fix me up with that prescription again. It's absolutely perfect as a tonic and nervousness fighter.”—Mrs. Rose Craig, 307 Sacré-Coeur St., Verdun, Que.

Teaching Health By Radio

Theodore Nettling, who at 96 years, is conducting a “Radio Service” to teach men and women how to attain long life and a happy lot to octogenarian and nonagenarian friends at the Hotel Breslin, New York, and told how he had conquered disease.

“The first thing is to think right,” he said. “Right thinking is right living. Otherwise the secret lies with each of us alone.”

“For myself I neither drink, smoke nor eat meat. When I was 21 I drank ten cups of coffee to get rid of a toothache. Three years ago I stopped smoking and a quarter of a century ago cut meat from my diet.” Otherwise place no restrictions on myself.”

“How long do I expect to live?” he asked in repeating a question put to him.

“Indefinitely. As long as I continue to live right by thinking right. Next year I shall be a year younger and accompany my 95th birthday.”

Death In Wake Of Storms

Tornadoes Took Toll of 1,929 Lives in Eight Years

Tornadoes in the United States during the eight years ending with 1923 caused the loss of 1,929 lives and the destruction of more than $62,000,000 worth of property. These figures were reported in a paper prepared for the session of the American Meteorological Society by H. C. Hunter, of the United States Weather Bureau. Although tornadoes seem to be increasing in frequency, they are still far less numerous than in the central and western portions of the cotton belt, this may be due, Mr. Hunter said, to greater accuracy in reporting.
